

GLENWOOD RESOURCE CENTER REDEVELOPMENT PLANNING

Glenwood Resource Center Redevelopment Plan

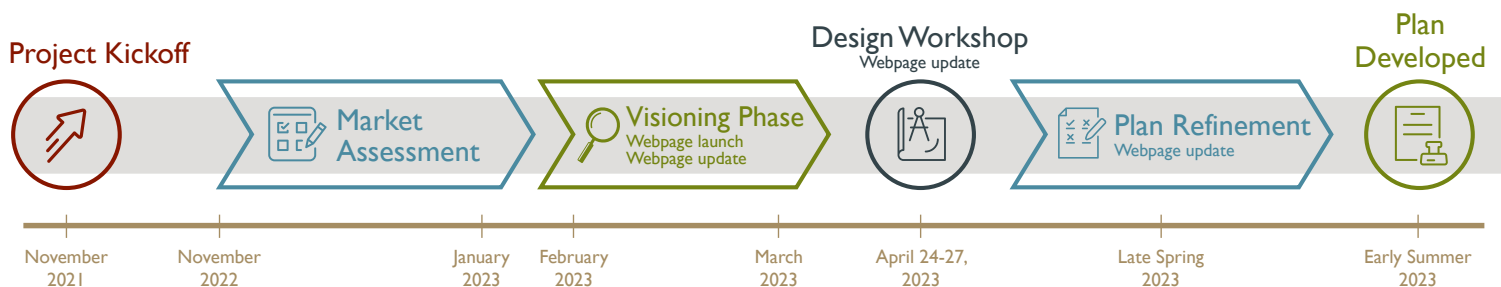

With the State of Iowa's direction to repurpose the Glenwood Resource Center (GRC), the Iowa Economic Development Authority has begun working with local leaders to reimagine the 380-acre campus and provide Glenwood with an asset that can be a source of community pride. The resulting master plan will:

- Reflect input from stakeholders and the public
- Consider cultural resources and sensitivities
- Define opportunities for improved access
- Promote economic synergies and employment opportunities
- Provide a roadmap for sustained growth

A consensus-driven vision will be developed that recognizes GRC's historical significance and the potential for transformation. The public will be invited to learn about the project and provide input during the Design Workshop, which will be held April 24 through April 27, 2023. The public is invited to join the project team at the Design Workshop from 5:30-7 p.m. each night on campus in the Meyers Building gymnasium. The process includes providing community updates at key project milestones indicated in the schedule graphic below.

Public input will be requested as part of the Design Workshop. The workshop will last four days, and each evening, the public will be invited to learn about the day's work and provide comments and feedback. The next day, the project team will work to incorporate feedback and comments from the previous evening. The process repeats until the last day, where the goal is to have consensus on the preferred redevelopment plan.
